> 1. French energy group Engie's process for selling its two coal-fired thermal power plans in Brazil has been resumed;
>
> 2. At this point, Spic is only interested in purchasing the Pampa Sul thermal power plant;

> 4. A potential joint sale including the Jorge Lacerda thermal power complex has not been dismissed.
> We request clarification on the above items by September 6, 2018, including confirmation or denial, as well as any other information you may deem relevant.

In response to the Notice, the Company reports that, as widely disclosed to the market in the Announcement to the Market published on February 15, 2017, in the Material Facts published on December 13, 2017 and April 10, 2018, and as mentioned in item 3.3 of its Reference Form, it continues to evaluate alternatives to proceed with its portfolio's decarbonization process, to include the divestment of its Jorge Lacerda and Pampa Sul Thermal Power Complexes.

The Company further informs that no binding commitment has been reached with potential buyers for those assets, nor has it defined the sale structure (whether joint or in isolation) or the terms and conditions of an eventual deal; in any case, joint divestment of the assets has not been dismissed.

The Company would also like to use this opportunity to reaffirm its position that it will keep shareholders, employees and the market at large abreast of all relevant developments in the process, pursuant to the contents of CVM Instruction No. 358/02.
